AUTO FACTS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW By Eric Meltzer

Here's a story about a road trip gone wrong. This particular trip originated in central Ohio. It was to be a direct drive to Fryeburg, and to be fair, there were car issues ahead of time that were understood but still workable in order to complete the journey. The driver, my daughter, planned a full day of driving. She also brought along a small dog she was caring for. I tell this tale from my perspective, involved as support from afar, silently worrying and waiting for her arrival.

Monday, 5:45 am departure after a fitful nights sleep with a packed car and excited dog, spare coolant and oil to address the vehicle's appetite for vital engine fluids - based on sketchy facts and an unknown repair shop's assessment may have been clue number one in the failure chain. The plan to stop as necessary to check and top off fluid levels were grossly miscalculated. The overheating engine brought the journey to a stop barely two hours into the trip. Time to cool followed by a drink of coolant and the trip begins anew. Inconvenient breakdowns found our intrepid driver far from anyplace with motor fluids and the packed fluids quickly depleted. This accelerated use of oil and water this soon, should have been clue number two.

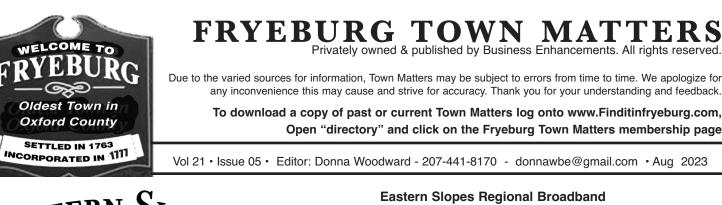

Undaunted and armed with a AAA card, a call was placed for a maximum-one hundred mile tow to an auto parts store one hundred miles closer to home. The fluids are renewed and the journey could continue. Perhaps an over abundance of confidence again because after adding fresh coolant and oil the car refused to start. Assuming the car could be fixed, a shop near by would need to be located. Could they fix it? Would parts be available? Is a hotel room needed? Would they allow a dog? Another tow is needed all on a Federal Holiday. Maybe a shipper could be located to bring the car back or a rescue party with car trailer. Still these plans would require a day of waiting with the car illegally parked and the driver squatting at various coffee shops within walking distance - with a dog - to pass the time. By now, it's after noon.

After convening the sharpest minds in automotive disaster relief in the situation room, the details of the final plan were presented. Rent a U-Haul capable of towing the car, load up, and continue on. A quick call found a very helpful employee of the rental truck giant on the other end who confirmed the logistics, offered our driver and dog a ride and volunteered help to load the stricken car. All seemed well with the world until it was discovered that the necessary truck was, in fact, at a different terminal 30 miles away and they were closed for the holiday. Some wrangling convinced the other terminal to help out and our driver and dog were picked up and on their way to get the truck. By dinner time the car was loaded, the dog was loaded, and the open road beckoned. The penalty was unplanned expenditures, hours of delay, fatigue and stress. It's now after 6pm.

It should be noted that a Volvo wagon is considered a large vehicle by the driver who is now in command of a box truck with limited visibility towing a car dolly loaded with a car. An hour into her journey as a trucker, a break was needed and an exit chosen where, on this holiday, nothing was open and those establishments were miles beyond the distance that the signs implied. Unfortunately, turning this rig around wasn't as simple as it would seem and after getting into a situation between choosing to back up or falling into a ditch, the former was chosen. Except the truck turns one way, the dolly another, and the car yet another. All this articulation makes towing forward fairly simple but backing up guite a bit more challenging. After considerable maneuvering one wheel of the car departed the dolly rendering the unit unmovable. Lack of cell service and darkness exacerbated the issue and found our driver and dog walking a way up the longest, muddiest driveway in mid-state New York to ask for a phone or assistance. Fortunately the home occupant was a friendly woman who answered the door against her normal intuition. Another phone call to the automobile club and a lot of explaining brought help with jacks and knowledge to secure the car back on the dolly. The time is now around 8pm.

With hundreds of miles and several states to go our driver slowly made her way northeast. Stops for fuel and food were finally uneventful and by nearly 4pm on Tuesday the journey ended. The nightmare road trip. We've all heard tales or know of someone who has experienced one. The joys of travel by car can be fantastic when all goes well but when things go south as the road goes north it's a different story entirely. This also shows that machinery can and will break down despite the best of preparations. It happens to us, even as the healer of mechanical ills. Survival largely depends on improvisation while success is all a state of mind.

Welcome home Rachel!

FASTERN SLOPES REGIONAL BROADBAND

I've already got Cable Internet, why would I want anything else? If you are lucky enough to have Spectrum near enough to their house to give you a pretty good experience right now then this is an understandable question. When all is said and done, the project may see Spectrum as their chosen partner to expand access to families who don't have it. However, communities with multiple high-speed Broadband options tend to have lower monthly rates and better service due to the competition. Technologically, there are other solutions that are faster and more future proof than cable, such as fiber to the home. If we can find a solution (either from an enhanced Spectrum offering or from another provider) that upgrades your speed, extends the life of the physical network, and lowers your monthly bills, why wouldn't you support such an endeavor?

Eastern Slopes Regional Broadband welcomes all interested town members to join their committee meetings. Typically the full committee meets every 2nd and 4th Wednesday each month at 6:30 PM via Zoom, but that schedule is subject to change depending on committee needs. More information is available on their website.

Questions? Email: info@esrbroadband.org or visit: www.esrbroadband.org

Maine will receive a whopping $271 million over the next five years as part of a historic nationwide expansion of high speed internet access in rural areas, according to an announcement made by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) last month. Maine received more Broadband Equity Access and Deployment program (BEAD) funding than any other New England state.

The state can request at least 20% of its BEAD dollars later this year after the Maine Connectivity Authority submits complete implementation plans to the NTIA. Maine residents helped boost the State's BEAD funding by identifying homes without broadband through the NTIA's online Connect The Dots campaign.

Eastern Slopes Regional Broadband (ESRB) is a coalition serving the towns of MSAD#72, which includes Brownfield, Denmark, Fryeburg, Lovell, Stoneham, Stow, and Sweden in Maine, and Chatham in NH.

The group was formed following an initial investigation into the challenges of upgrading broadband services by the town of Denmark. Research showed that providers would have better ability to offer efficient proposals for building infrastructure and providing services for a larger population/geographic area.

Understanding Medicare by Bert Weiss · 603-986-5650

I'll bet if you are on a Medicare Advantage plan, you have benefits you are not aware of, so you aren't using them. You can get a book with a summary of benefits online, by asking your agent, or call the member services number on your card. Benefits often available on Medicare Advantage but not on traditional Medicare with a supplement and prescription drug plan, are vision, dental, hearing, over the counter drug store stuff, and gym membership. All plans are different so be sure to check yours. (If you have an over the counter benefit, but don't use it consider getting products and donating to a shelter or food pantry. Somebody would be awfully glad to get such items as diapers, cold medications, vitamins, oral care products, etc.)

Annual enrollment period is Oct 15th to Dec 7th. Everybody ought to do a benefit check. Each year, plans can change. Around October first, you will get a change notice telling you what has changed in your plan. During Annual enrollment period, you are allowed to change providers but you must wait until October 15th.

So do your due diligence. Consider a local agent to help you navigate the process and changes. If you sign up on the phone with a stranger, you are totally on your own. Agents get paid when you enroll with one, and it costs you nothing extra. Their job is to compare and help you select the right company for you! If you call a company direct, they will not compare other company's plans to find the best fit for you. They'll just sign you up. Do yourself a favor and contact a local agent to help you.

FRYEBURG RESCUE by Eric Meltzer

Warm weather outdoor activities are on everyone's mind this time of year. Hiking is especially popular lately but take some precautions when venturing out into the woods. Bring and drink plenty of water to avoid dehydration. Always use an approved filter before drinking any water from an unknown source. Giardia and cryptosporidium are microscopic parasites that exists in unclean water and can cause debilitating stomach illness and diarrhea but can be prevented with the appropriate filtration. Wear the correct footwear and clothing for the climate and bring along extra layers in case you get caught out after dark or in higher terrain where temperatures might drop drastically at night. Have a flashlight or headlamp with you. Daylight can fade fast in the woods and hills well before sunset. Make sure your cell phone battery is fully charged before leaving or bring an extra charging block. Most of us use our phones for photos and navigation so you want to make sure you have enough battery left in case you need to make an emergency call. Apps like All Trails are a great resource for hiking trails and GPS apps offer tracking and can often pinpoint your location if help is needed.

Cell service can be spotty in remote areas but sometimes a text can get through when a call can't. Always let someone know where you are going and approximate time of return so help can be alerted if something goes wrong. Even leaving a note somewhere in your car can help point rescuers in the right direction. Have fun and stay safe out there!

Budget Enacted as Legislative Session Closes

On July 6th, the Maine State Legislature enacted a $445 million supplemental budget. As the Senate Lead on the Appropriations Committee, I worked all year long to negotiate this budget. Budgets are reflections of priorities. Legislators, like the people who elect us, all have competing priorities, and we have to work them all together to get to a compromise. As usual, differing people will find things to like and things to dislike in the final product.

The supplemental budget builds from the current services budget that maintains the State paying 55% of education cost, fully restores revenue sharing, and provides $200 million in tax relief to Mainers each year. This results in an unprecedented total biennial budget of $10.3 billion. The baseline over the last two-year budget increases over 15%.

The supplemental budget makes investments in housing programs, child care, education, and funds the startup costs for the new paid family and medical leave program. Some highlights of the budget are:

Increases deductions on retirement income to $35,000 and then $48,000 for seniors. · Conforms Maine tax code to certain federal provisions that will save Maine taxpayers $340 million in the next biennium.

- Provides a $300 refundable tax credit to Mainers with dependents.
- Invests $70 million to encourage more building of affordable housing.
- Dedicates $12 million for emergency shelters/housing for those facing homelessness. • Doubles the child care worker stipend from $200 to $400.
- Expands the eligibility of families eligible for financial assistance for child care.
- Delivers $20 million to replenish the School Revolving Renovation Fund.
- Provides a 4.5% increase for Maine's public higher education institutions.
- Offers $15 million to continue providing up to two years of free community college.
- Invests $31 million to ensure access to emergency medical services.
- Provides $2.6 million to create six trial court judgeships and nearly 40 other positions to address the backlog of cases.
- Replaces the Pine Tree Development Zone program with the Dirigo Business Incentive Program, a new program that provides tax credits to businesses to train workers and invest in capital.
- Puts $25 million into establishing a paid family and medical leave program that will be available as of May 1, 2026. To fund the program, a payroll tax of up to 1% was passed on employees and employers, except that employers with fewer than 15 employees are not required to make employer contributions. It provides that employees may take up to 12 weeks of leave per year. The maximum weekly benefit is capped at 100% of the state average weekly wage. The weekly benefit that employees on leave will receive is a 90% wage replacement.

Leaves nearly $1 billion in the Budget Stabilization Fund. (aka Rainy Day Fund)

Governor Mills signed the supplemental budget into law on July 11th. It will go into effect 90 days after the legislature adjourns, sine die, which as of this writing is expect to occur on July 25th.

Similarly, the Legislature enacted highway fund budget this year that will create a sustainable source of funding so we will no longer need to use bonds in order to maintain our transportation infrastructure every year. This is done by dedicating 40% of the 5.5% vehicle sales tax and 40% of the sales and use taxes collected by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. It is predicted to raise more than $200 million for infrastructure each biennium. Governor Mills signed the highway fund budget into law on June 16th

Seniors may be eligible for tax refunds, even if they aren't required to file Maine tax returns

The Legislature is still in Special Session, having adjourned prematurely last March. That was done to avoid lowering taxes for low-to middle income earners. Because the budget does not address the needs of all Mainers, especially those struggling to pay bills, I voted against it. Since the Legislature was unable to complete its work, many bills are being held over until next session.

This month, I want to focus on a possible way to help seniors and those living on a fixed income. Some Maine residents may still benefit from filing a Maine tax return, even if they are not required to!

Maine residents who filed to claim the $850 checks last year learned that they'd been missing out on the Property Tax Fairness Credit and the Sales Tax Fairness Credit by opting not to file a Maine tax return.

The 2021 Property Tax Credit was worth up to $1,500 for gualified applicants, if filers file returns for up to 3 back tax years to claim the Property Tax Fairness Credit and the Sales Tax Fairness Credit.

Going forward they would likely continue to gualify for the Property Tax Fairness Credit and the Sales Tax Fairness Credit. I am helping to spread the word about these credits, offering some consolation to folks who didn't file by the deadline to receive the $850 and $450 checks issued last year by Maine Revenue Services.

Obviously, this message does not apply to most readers, but maybe you know someone that can benefits from this?
